It's "The Big Bang!"

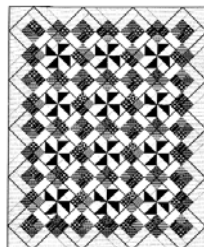

This zany, high-energy, two-character show, starring John Bates and Kyle Vespestad, is set in a Park Avenue apartment where a backer's audition is being held for the most expensive Broadway musical ever. The show's creators need $83.5 million to bring The Big Bang to Broadway, and the audience becomes the prospective financial backers for the show.

The story line is nothing less than an irreverent history of the world - starting with the opening number One Big Bang: The Birth Of The Universe. The show is a series of mini-production numbers moving through all the other "big" moments in history covering everything from Adam and Eve, the building of the Pyramids, Henry VIII to present day. This is one hysterical romp through history with comic dialogues between musical numbers. The Big Bang will keep you laughing throughout. It's produced by Cabaret Oldtown, the same folks who have produced many other great shows for previous KRWA conferences. The Big Bang follows the awards presentations in Teale Theatre Wednesday evening. Your banquet ticket gets you in.

Grand Prizes: Three Pieced Quilts

KRWA has made a tradition of having beautiful quilts as door prizes. Kathleen Ronnebaum has designed and pieced three more fantastic quilts for the 2003 conference. This year's patterns are: Triple Irish Chain in purple, blue, green and yellow; a Bargello quilt in red, gold, blue and olive green and a scrappy pinwheel pattern called Meet Me At The Corner in earthtone colors. Each quilt is queen size. One will be given at the banquet Wednesday, 3/26; two will be drawn for at the Thursday luncheon. Your meal ticket is your chance to win.
